THE LA PLATA GOVERNMENT.

GOVERNOR COSTA'S MESSAGE.

Yesterday the new Governor, Dr. Julio A. Costa, took over the reigns of government of the most populous and wealthiest province of this republic—the province of Buenos Aires. The new Governor, we may say, is ushered in by the unanimous vote of this province and the unanimous approval of the republic at large. Few men have enjoyed such good fortune, and we remain assured that such admirable unanimity of opinion from government and opposition parties in the country is based on the conviction that Dr. Julio A. Costa will make a good Governor. He is tied down by no compromises; he has free elbow room, and in his scope of action can exert enormous influence in the political destinies of the republic. He is not a new man, for we all know him and have learnt to appreciate his excellent qualities: and more than anything else, all admire his independence. In taking over the reins of power from Governor Paz he is, so to say, a security that he will continue on improved methods the regenerating policy of Governor Paz. Governor Paz took over the inheritance of D'Amico, a fatal burden, but he prepared the ground for his successor, Dr. Costa, who we feel sure deserves the confidence of the country and of the province.

Owing to the lateness of the hour we are obliged to keep over Governor Paz's farewell Message: it is too voluminous for our columns. But the new Governor's inaugural Message is of such immediate and transcendental importance that we reproduce it word for word for the benefit of our readers. The Message of the new Governor, in which our readers will find his ideas about the issue of Cedulas as well as a profession of political faith, somewhat obscurely worded, it is true, but none the less full of patriotism, runs as follows:—

Fellow citizens of the Senate and Chamber of Deputies,

I come, following the custom of the Governors of Buenos Ayres, to address you on this occasion, and it is a good custom that the Governor should speak to the people at this moment, under the impression of his oath and of the tradition of the land in which he was born, an impression fresh in his memory, and under which, while speaking to his fellow citizens, he feels as if the echoes reached the departed; and, verily a man must be presumptuous who under such circumstances dared to utter anything but the outcome of his heart.

I have nothing to add to my declarations as a candidate for the Governorship, but I may at present lay some stress on certain statements to define my programme as a Governor. Elected by the unanimous vote of my fellow citizens, I had occasion to travel over the province to study its requirements. I have visited the numerous towns and villages where the gold is produced to pay our debts, and I have come to the conclusion that God and man favour the growth of the province, for nature has tempered her action both on the soil and the race. Look at the Southern plains with their rich grasses and invigorating climate, specially adapted to cattle industry: and here I may point to the necessity of draining marshy lands and oblige every landowner to drain his property, for nobody has a right to keep marshes that are detrimental to the interests of the community.

Our quarries must be turned to better account and railways must converge thither to give more impetus to that source of wealth.

One of my principal occupations shall be to see that sufficient rolling stock is supplied on the railroads to meet the requirements of the province. But means of communication must necessarily be always deficient, and that deficiency must be met by auxiliary industries, such as mills, distilleries, factories, etc.: such industries I should protect as much as possible, as I hope to see many more establishments like those of Sauce Corto, Taudil, Mercedes, Chivilcoy etc. Then there would be no excuse for the deserted condition of the West, specially suited to agriculture and the working of agricultural products.

Those few establishments, such as the meat factories that solve the problem of our cattle export and surprise with unexpected results their very owners, prove that we now can launch foward into an industrial epoch; and if the Government that ends to-day can claim as an honour its vigorous propaganda to promote agriculture, I shall in every possible manner aid with the elements within my reach endeavour to promote the industrial development of the province.

I do not know, nor can I know, the administrative details of our financial situation. But on the whole we all know that the circumstances are precarious. I am not very familiar with finances, but my Finance Minister will know all that is necessary, without knowing too much. And I know that a good financial regime is the foundation of administration. It is like a clock which marks the hour of prudence and difficulties. I know that with the social temperament of our epoch impressions of this nature are always vivid, and whether good or bad, they spread and become exaggerated pessimists and optimists in the Bolsa, quoting together with stocks, men and things, and even the acts of Government as they impress the mind. And we must be careful with this delicate fibre. I can assure you that, with your unrestricted assistance, I will effect real economies, and that I will not sanction a budget with any deficit, that I will not waste the resources of the Exchequer in any work or enterprise. This I will leave to realize itself if it is good, with its own resources, or in the absence of its own resources it shall be allowed to lapse. In this I keep within what I consider to be the proper sphere of Government, namely: The administration of justice, education, the execution of the laws, and the protection of all rights and liberties. In the progressive development I shall be merely a regulator and indirect auxilary to social initiative. Thus I think that there is no reason for a Ministry of Public works, which should be superseded by a portfolio for agriculture.

Now that the Western Railway has been sold to meet with the proceeds urgent wants and normalise the working of the Provincial Bank, that complicated machine is no longer in the hands of the State, which, in this manner, is placed within the sphere I have already indicated—a sphere of which the Banks are a deviation, inasmuch as, particularly in the case of the Provincial Bank, it is a question of a traditional and to us peculiar institution that forms part of our organism, as a collectivity, an unprecedented fact in political economy, and which common sense advises us to maintain and strengthen. In regard to the Mortgage Bank, I need hardly say that, so long as the present situation remains unchanged, I do not consider any further issue of Cedulas advantageous.

According to information I have gathered, I think it would be easy and at the same time an advantage to declare Quequen and Ajo, as others on the South Coast and the Paraua, as ports, and also to complete the national port of Bahia Blanca. I shall favor any enterprise in this direction. A new map ("catastro") should be taken of the province in accordance with the latest scientific ideas. We have no reliable map as yet.

We must devote our attention to giving the Port of La Plata such improvements as railways, warehouses, landing places, and endowing the city of La Plata with those privileges and resources which are required to raise it to the rank to which the beauty of its design and monuments entitle it, thus affording comfort to its 65,000 inhabitants who may number 130,000 three years hence.

The recent census of the province shows that fifty-five per cent of the population cannot read or write. We must devote our attention so this.

In the course of my Government I have nothing, nor shall I have anything to say in regard to general politics. I think the Governor of a State, as the Constitution sets forth, is nothing more nor less than a natural agent of the National Government, and if I am allowed in this regard to extend my constitutional sphere of action, for the good of my country and the stability of our dear institutions, strengthened among us and raised in the eyes of the world to the idea of an organic nation by the labor and sacrifices of several generations, I will say that I hold dearer than any local name the name of Argentine and to these duties I will direct the sentiments of my good friendship with the President of the Republic.

I mean to show also, in my administration and in the governing public action, which is more efficacious than proclaiming it from the public tribunal, that not only am I incapable of committing the shameful crime of working to leave a successor, but that I am capable of organizing an impersonal government in which many may take part. This is the true idea of a Republican government, a government of discussion in which thought will find life and in which action will be the result of reflexion and deliberation, an executive government with Chambers as free counsellors, which is the live conception of our elective government.

That is the way a government should define a government, going further with acts than the eloquent words of orators to whom, perhaps, owing to the increased difficulty of the times, it has not been given to carry out their ideals when they were in power.

While I am talking of distant considerations of electoral politics, I will state that I would wish for my country the influence of that liberal conservative tendency which presides at the free discussion of public affairs—through the means of delegated powers, that assist the men in power without sacrificing convictions nor aims—that gives them advice when in error and loyal support in favour of order and peace — that is as far from from destructive radicalism as from ignorant absolutism — the tendency that builds up and does not destory and is in the social economy the flame that warms and does not consume.

I will also say, that without restraining in any way the movement of electoral opinion which, as I have already said, is outside the sphere of Government, I should wish for my province in the present circumstances and for the good of its true interests, the postponment until the proper time of those political agitations which precede the national struggle, thus avoiding the premature division of men and circles that could render sterile a good part of the effort with which all have an opportunity of contributing to the common welfare.

It was President Adams who said that party-spirit, the spirit of intrigue, the spirit of corruption are the natural enemies of republican institutions and the destroying angel of elective governments. I hope that we shall always remember this to moderate temperament with judgment, to aspire to do good without the spirit of faction, and to know how to find advantage along the path of labor and duty, in public as well as in private life, the honor of the name and not sordid lucre.

Before concluding, I wish to call your attention to the following. It has been observed that the teudency to imitate is one of the most pronounced in human nature. That tendency explains the success of style, the schools of literature and science, the accidental supremacy of men, of taste, of fashion, of political parties, the formation of the national character, progress, and even national decline. It is a feature, a position which appearing at an opportune moment becomes a success, finds imitators, and by diffusion develops into a predominant tendency. The now outgoing Governor, by assuming the reins of government at a difficult moment, has stamped in a pronounced manner the moral physiognomy of the period during which he ruled. Independently of his work of reparation and important initiatives, he has restored the fashion of our old administrative uprightness, and by this fact alone has engraved his name in indelible characters. We must persevere in the task of making good prevail over evil, so that the first may be stronger than the other in the struggle for life and thus become the moral selection.

These are, fellow-citizens of the Senate and Chamber of Deputies, the aims with which I come to discharge my duties, soliciting your assistance and your advice to realize them, and hoping that by helping ourselves we shall be helped by Providence which has so generously endowed the Province of Buenos Aires.

THE ENTRE RIOS DISTURBANCES.

Our readers will find elsewhere a full and detailed account of the recent disturbances in Entre Rios, from the pen of an eye-witnesses. How the collision could have taken place seems incomprehensible, as it is quite evident the Racedistas did not desire any encounter with the authorities, in proof of which we transcribe the following proclamation;

The President of the Club 25 de Mayo to his fellow-citizens,

The Chief of Police of the city has informed the undersigned that he will not allow the proposed popular reception to-day of General Eduardo Racedo on his arrival to take place. At the same time, he refuses to write down the prohibition, nor will he assign any motive for it.

I have decided to respect this prohibition and I desire it to be respected by all, so that no one will be present to receive General Racedo. And at the same time, I wish to protest before my fellow-citizens against this arbitrary prohibition, which is an attack upon our political rights.

Parana, April 28th, 1890.

Miguel Laurencena.

In the meantime, the same Club has issued the following manifesto:

To the people of Entre Rios and to the Republic!

The grave events which have taken place in this city (Parana) impose on the Club 25 de Mayo, the managing committee of the popular party, the duty of informing the people of Entre Rios and the Republic of what has occurred, to protest against the recent occurrences, and to endeavor to restore public order.

In the exercise of those sacred duties of citizenship which are the foundation of our institutions, and confiding in the declarations made by the President of the Republic and the Governor of the Province, this Club decided to organize a manifestation to proclaim its candidates and publicly greet General Racedo on his arrival. The guarantee and sanction we received from the authorities amount to the following:—Prohibition to meet, dissolution of meetings, violence, arrests, firing on the people. These guarantees by the authorities were followed by scenes of violence which resulted in the death of many members of our party. These things shew that we are denied our rights as citizens and, as Argentines, we protest in the presence of the Nation. General Racedo came as the bearer of the olive of peace, and he is decided to fight for our liberty and for the liberty of our very adversaries, should they reject him. The interests of the Republic demand the immediate restoration of public order, and this Club will direct its efforts towards that end. We call upon the members of our party to observe an exemplary conduct and await the instructions of the central committees. Let us aim at an enthusiastic union. Justice must triumph over illegality and crime. Let us have implicit faith in General Racedo, our leader. He is a brave soldier and a patriotic citizen. A virile people can never be vanquished. Let us, therefore, shew order and discipline and thus afford an example of civic dignity to the entire Republic.

Miguel Laurencena, Ramon Calderon, Ignacio A. Crespo, R dolfo Nunez, Diogenes Aguirre, Antonio Vieyra, Fortunato Calderon, Justo Jose Caraballo.

The dignified tone of this manifesto leads us to hope that the people of Entre Rios will tolerate no further disturbances. The days of revolution are over.

FINANCIAL AND GENERAL.

(Per P.M.S. "Britannia.")

(From our own Correspondent)

April 5th.

Your enemy, the Statist, says:—"In the South American market the recovery in Argentine securities, which took place last week, in consequence of telegrams from Buenos Ayres as to Government fiscal policy has been fairly maintained. Considering that Argentine newspapers had arrived in this country dated March 4th, the appearance in the Times money article during the week of two long letters, one dated February 22nd and the other apparently anterior, and dealing with the then condition of affairs, has been a good deal commented upon. In one of these letters it was stated that there had been no failures, excepting a very few in connection with Bourse transactions. This scarcely tallies with newspaper advices. But how comes it to pass that the leading newspaper of the world, as it is claimed the Times is, has to resort to such ancient correspondence instead of giving information up to date? On Tuesday a communication was sent out to the Press in which it was announced, under date March 31st, that the Buenos Ayres Provincial Government had rejected tenders for the purchase of the Western Railway. Last week, it will be recollected, it was understood that the Government would sell the Railway to a group of European capitalists for seven millions sterling. It was added in the telegram that new tenders for the Railway will be received in August next. The same communication contained the statement, since confirmed, that the Argentine Government, which has lately been at issue with the East Argentine Railway on the subject of the guarantee, and had suspended that guarantee, has now restored it. Cedula issues have been a little unsteady, but the movement has been slight, although advices have been received that the gold promium has further advanced to 168½ per cent."

The Statist of September 7th and November 16th, 1889, gave tables showing the prices at which Argentine Eight per Cent Cedulas had to be bought in order to yield a return of from 5 to 10 per cent on the capital employed, account being taken of the premium on gold from 2½ up to 150 per cent. This week the Statist gives a table for 7 per cent Stock, applicable to the A and B issues of National Cedulas quoted in the London official list, with calculations carried up to 200 per cent gold premium. One point to be particularly noticed, observes the Statist, is that, as shown by the tables, the higher the point at which the gold premium may already stand, the less is the proportionate effect of a further advance. Thus, for instance, whilst a rise in the gold premium from par to 50 per cent reduces the yield on an investment by one-third, a further rise of 50 points (to 100 per cent) causes an additional loss of only one-sixth. In making use of the tables, it must be remembered that they show the effect of the gold premium only, and that the net yield of coupons collected is affected by agency charges.

The Weekly Bulletin has a historicocomic article about "The Argentine Muddle." Your contemporary's history is not good and I do not think the article of sufficient interest to notice, because what it says of English travellers paying their gold into a bank and getting a sackful of paper dollars on their arrival in Buenos Aires is too well-worn a subject, although all quite true. There is, in fact, a want of copy in the financial journals and everyone is away Easteriug. Holidays in this country are now-a-days very real, and particularly with Stock Exchange men who are all volunteers, sportsmen or yachting men.

The political papers to-day are filled with the opinions of African lights, such as Sir Samuel Baker, Sir Francis de Winton. Stanley, etc., on "Full steam ahead" of the German Emperor and Major Wissmann and Emin in Equatorial Africa. Sir Samuel Baker, who knows something of the Soudan, says what your humble correspondent said years ago, without knowing anything about it—"the Germans," Sir Samuel says, "will be disappointed in their trade prospects." Equatorial Africa is not for Europeans, and the natives will dance and sing for you, but they will not work, and there is nothing to be had but ivory, and the cost of carriage to the sea is enormous. Sir Samuel, however, never ceases to growl at the British Government for not keeping the Soudan and continuing him in his employment as Governor. He thinks Khartoum and Berber and that part of the country will eventually belong to the Italians. He laughs at the English fiddling in Cairo with a promise to leave sometime in the millennium, but having no African policy at all. The Germans pretend, at least, to some definite policy and, therefore, Emin joined them. Besides, he seems to have a bad spite against Stanley and Parke and other English who assisted him. He has never written to any of them since his accident. He might have remembered that the German doctors gave him up, and had it not been for Parke, he would have been left to die. Upon the whole, the Anglo-African swells are a little sore, but do not seem to anticipate any difficulty with the Germans or to have any jealousy of their aims.

Prince Bismarck has finally accepted the title offered him, but signs himself Prinz von Bismarck Herzog von Lauenberg. There is nothing newer on continental politics than I wrote to you fully about last night. The evening papers are all full of sham fights and volunteer preparations.

POSTCRIPT.

The Easter Recess.

Magnificent spring weather makes Easter gay indeed. The clubs are abandoned, for during the recess most men are out of town; but there is a goodly string of carriages to-day in Bond Street, and the latest sleeves with plump arms in them and bonnets with winning faces in them announce spring fashions in living, lovely and liviest forms. The common world is at Folkestone watching the military manœuvres of volunteer battalions. A still commoner is at Ramsgate; and perhaps the lowest of the low who sniff the breezes and pluck daffodils on Hampstead Heath have the best of it. To that category I am proud to belong and am glad to escape the conventional clatter of plates at a Brighton or Eastbourne hotel. I rejoice in not having to hear young people discussing "Lux Mundi", Professor Stokes on "Identity", the newest form of infidelity, and mixing up the last debut at the Gaiety with Sarah Bernhardt's impersonation of "La Sainte Vierge" in the new Passion Play at Paris. If was, as you will have expected, not given with stage accessories or in costume, but simply recited. The divine Sarah was clad in white and modelled on antique paintings of the Madonna and has partly satisfied her great ambition, which may only be fully satiated at Ammergau. The acting of M. Harancourt's dramatic poem is not likely to be permitted in Paris, where when all is said the people are still religious. The churches were exceptionally full this Lent.

I cannot, from the critiques as yet printed, give you any fair idea of the reception of the play. We know the performance was disturbed and M. Harancourt had to come forward and request those who wish to retire to do so whilst the actors paused. But whether the interruption was caused by, as some say, the butcher boys who were out for their Good Friday Holiday, or by an anti-religious element, shouting "Assez de Christ," or by a serious-minded group who felt the scandal of a sacred character being impersoated by a too well known actress; there is no evidence as yet to decide. I am inclined to think that however excellent may have been M. Harancourt's poem its recitation was a compromise unsuited to the French character, and has therefore failed. What seems to have had most success was Wagner's "Parsifal" music, illustrative of the great sacrament and "Last Supper." I cannot see myself why these sacred subjects could not, like the old mysteries sanctioned and utilised by the Church, be rendered solemly impressive by historion art as well as by tones and forms and colours. I am quite certain that had Wagner's life been extended, the most sacred event in history would have been finally represented at Bayreuth with the accompaniment of the whole combination of the art-gifts of humanity, and that none would have been the worse. Some might have been bettered In England there is no chance "Parsifal" being given on the stage. The public would not endure the great scene of the "Supper" and the favourite disciple. At least that was said a year or two ago. We progress so rapidly there is no knowing what may be in store for us a year or two hence.

We were talking of "compromise" as not a French virtue. It is excessively English. The Home Secretary for the last fortnight has been pestered with petitions for the reprieve of the Crewe murderers, the boys Richard Davies—18 years of age—and George Davies, 16. The wretched Mr Matthews, with the judges and disciplinarians of the law on one side and the sentimentalists on the other, has Englishman like, tossed up—no, that is not what I mean, he has "split the difference," and reprieves George, the younger, and vindicates the course of the law by hanging Richard, the elder. But a juror in the case has written to say the decision is outrageous, and if anything, George much more deserves hanging than Richard, who was not the first to strike and was less keen upon "doing for the old man" than his younger brother. Both should be reprieved or neither.

The political event of the day is the reprinting of the "Pitt-Rutland Correspondence" by the present Duke of Rutland, and the two reviews, which appear simultaneously, one in the Times and the other by Mr. Gladstone, in the Speaker. The Times, of course, improves the occasion by showing that according to the reports of the Duke of Rutland, the Viceroy in Ireland in 1785 proved to the satisfaction of Pitt that Home Rule was as impossible then as the Times asserts it to be now. If Union, however it was to be accomplished, was the only means of salvation under a Grattan Parliament, which was at least English, Protestant, and moderately respectable, in spite of admitted bribery, robbery and corruption, what would be the case now? The Times seems to ask, when instead of a Grattan parliament we should have an assembly of Irish adventurers.

Mr Gladstone takes quite another view of the Pitt-Rutland letters and shows that what he had previously called the "blackguardism" of Pitt refers to him when older and corrupted by State intrigues and the errors of his anti-French policy, and that the correspondence proves that in 1785 Pitt was a Home Ruler and quite averse to the vulgar English opinion prevalent in the court of George III and in Dublin Castle, as well as to the commercial opinions current amongst English manufacturers and farmers.

I cannot say that Mr. Gladstone's historical grab at the question is very important now, for it really matters very little what Pitt thought on the question. We are now in 1890 and not in 1785. But the article in the Times is so excessively weak, it can be taken as "prima facie" evidence that Mr. Gladstone is right and that Home Rule opinions are right also. Mr. Balfour's Irish Land Bill is still being bullied by Lord Randolph in the Morning Post and by the Dublin Express, that is by his own party. But whilst during the recess the Liberals are silent on the question, it is necessary to remind you that in eliminating the essence of Mr. Balfour's bill from the complications of its many clauses and sections, it is a very cleverly arranged scheme to sow discord not only in the Liberal camp but in the Irish Nationalist camp. Many Liberal landlords will feel inclined to close with Mr. Balfour's offer, as many Irish tenants will. Neither of them are likely to get better terms. Mr. Gladstone could not offer better except by converting Mr. Balfour's State socialism into land nationalisation and in the end real socialism. By either Gladstonian or Balfourian methods the State must be creditor. The question is only the security, and if that is pressed too far, most assuredly the end will be that instead of creditor and temporary owner the state will become complete owner of the land in Ireland. It is the only logical result of altering the "status quo" essentially founded on individual ownership modified by tenant right, which is after all only what we call here "good will," which in Ireland is converted by a tradition more than by fact into a part of ownership of the soil. The Tories see the political dangers of Mr. Balfour's State socialism, whilst the extreme democrats oppose it as an attempt to avert the communising of the soil by bribing the tenantry with prospects of ownership whilst paying the landlords by instalments over a long period more than the land is worth and muleting the general tax-payers in Ireland to provide the security. After all, there is much in the Bill that both Mr. Gladstone and Mr. Parnell would in their hearts agree with. The real enemies of Mr. Balfour are the Tories and the Socialists. Mr. Gladstone and the Irish will oppose it because it comes from the Government. Therefore its chances of passing are not bright. Lord Randolph rightly describes it as an extended Ashbourne Act. But the Ashbourne Act was made upon Gladstonian lines—lines that he borrowed from John Bright, whose social and economical doctrines are long since effete.

THE ENTRE RIOS DISTURBANCES.

THE PEOPLE FIRED UPON BY THE POLICE

(From a Special Correspondent and eye-witness)

Parana, April 28th.

To the Editor of the STANDARD:

Yesterday will be a day long remembered here, as one without equal in this usually quiet city. Since Saturday it was dublicly known that, by order of the authorities, groups of men were prevented from entering the town to take part in the manifestation to General Racedo, which took place on Sunday 27th inst., and in which as an impartial eye-witness I affirm there were not less than 4,000 persons. From early morning people arrived and at 1 p.m. met at the port to await the General; the greatest enthusiasm prevailed, when at half past 3 p.m. news reached town that he was delayed on account of some mishap to the steamer and would arrive on the morrow; the manifestation then left the port, passing through Calles Rivadavia, Buenos Aires, General Urquiza and San Martin; the most perfect order being preserved throughout, and cheers for the President of the Republic and General Racedo rang through the air, loud and long. Numerous azoteas and balconies along the route were crowded with ladies who threw great quantities of flowers, as the manifestation passed; the latter was formed in part by the clubs General Racedo, Juarez Celman, Artezanos, General Dorrego and 25 de Mayo, each headed by its President.

In the Plaza Alvear, the 'manifestantes' dispersed in the same orderly way in which they had formed. Those belonging to the Club General Dorrego (all of whom were on horseback) had to pass through the Plaza Iro. de Mayo, (the Policia is here situated) and when on the opposite side of the Plaza to the Policia, a man shouted: "viva el General Racedo"; this was answered by "viva el Gobernador de la Provincia": again "viva el General Racedo", when the picquet who were well armed and held in readiness, rushed out and deliberately fired on the people! To describe the scene that ensued at this moment is impossible; shrieks and cries on all sides, some shutting themselves in their houses, and others running in all directions, none knowing where this would end; 5 persons were killed, and 10 or 11 wounded, (all belonging to the manifestation). An Italian employee in the Tramway taking no part in the manifestation, at the moment of the firing was entering the Post-Office, to take the correspondence to the Port, and was so seriously wounded that he died before reaching the Hospital, his name John Gaya, 52 years of age. It is difficult to understand how so few persons were injured, as the Plaza was full of people at the moment the firing commenced, amongst them women and children simply lookers-on (one woman and a child were wounded). A more dastardly attack cannot be conceived. Amongst those who took an active part were two professors of the Normal School, revolver in hand, threatening several persons who cheered for General Racedo, and who have for a long time taken part in our local politics.

No person is safe here; we have no guarantee for our lives; the affair of yesterday calls for immediate intervention on the part of the National Government.

To-day the authorities ordered that no manifestation should take place to receive General Racedo, and armed men were sent to disperse the people who were awaiting him in the 'Saladero Crespo'. The General arrived about half past 9 a.m. and was accompanied to his house by a number of friends.

The Government pretend that they feared a revolution for taking the above measures! Revolution! that they well know does not exist, unless in some of their fertile brains; on this pretext they are arresting numbers of citizens.

Whilst writing this I heard shots fired and on making inquiries, found that they proceeded from the street at the back of the Governor's house; three men passing there gave "Vivas" for General Racedo, when they were immediately fired upon and one killed by the soldiers on guard at the Governor's house! Last night, and to-night, shops, cafes, and houses all closed at a very early hour. People tremble for thier lives.

LATER NEWS

April, 29th

Several more men killed during the night. Hair-dresser's shop at the corner of the Hotel de Francia burned, owing to a shot being fired into it. Arrests continue. Over 200 persons prisoners! Numbers of them incommunicated. The market almost without meat to-day owing to the greater part of the butchers being arrested, of course all as revolutionists.

What will to-morrow bring.

Yours,

Veritas

OUR ARGENTINE FRIENDS.

London, March 27th

The Times and Daily News during the last few days have commented very gravely on the financial and monetary position at Buenos Ayres, which is now generally considered to be unsatisfactory in the extreme. This has caused a nervous feeling among British bondholders, who have lent in two years, according to the Economist, about 41 millions sterling in various forms to the Argentine people. Heretofore the confidence that English capitalists had in everything connected with Buenos Ayres (by which in this country is meant the Argentine Confederation) was unlimited. The measures, however, that have been adopted by the Government were by no means calculated to foster such good opinion.

The suspension of specie payments in January 1885 by a stroke of the pen, in the midst of profound peace and plentiful harvests, has never been explained, much less justified. The progressive increase of "assignats", reducing the dollar from 48 to 17 pence; the creation of Free Banks without any obligation to convert their notes; the avalanche of Cedulas; all these measures have excited the wonder, but not the admiration, of Englishmen. The only apparent excuse or palliation for such doings was the fact that everything in South America is the reverse of Europe; your winter is our summer; your crows are white, ours black; your swans black, ours white; hence it might be argued that as Europe found inconvertible paper money damnabory beyond comparison you experienced that it was "a blessing in disguise" and that the "more paper-money the better."

While Englishmen were trying in this manner to reconcile the marvellous prosperity, of which we heard so much, with the continuous rise in the gold premium a schedule was published, by the Foreign Office at Buenos Ayres of the state-properties of the Argentine Government, which summed up a total of 700 million gold dollars or 140 millions sterling. It will be remembered that in 1888 the total wealth of the Republic was given by Dr. Latzina, the Government statist, as 360 millions sterling; so that it would appear the Government owned 40 per cent of the nation. As a matter of fact, however, nobody paid the least attention to the official statement of 700 million dollars of Government property; the only wonder was that, seeing the inflation of the period, the Government official valuer did not valuethe Government properties at 1,400 millions. The creditors of the Republic naturally smiled at the idea of the Government putting its own value on its own assets. So far as any guarantee for the money lent by John Bull the properties in the Government schedule were of no practical value.

The constant influx of European emigrants, on the other hand, is regarded as a good security for the credit and solvency of the Republic. Dr. Farr's theory that an able-bodied adult, male or female, is an addition of £300 or £200 to the wealth of a nation is now regarded as a sound principle of political economy, however it was ridiculed at the outset. This is chiefly the reason why Argentine stocks have not fall en more heavily. Some of the morning papers, meantime, assert that all quotations of Argentine securities are nominal, and that if anybody tried to sell £50,000 worth he would find it impossible. Nevertheless, it is an undoubted fact that the British public have a great liking for the Argentine Republic and ascribe all its reverses to errors of the Government. In the Daily News of to-day you will see the following:—

"A circular report on the finances of the Argentine Republic, now published by the Foreign Office, gives some ancient history, and contains the following piece of nonsense: 'It will be as well now to consider the brighter side of the paper dollar by glancing at the Budget for 1890, and the prospective yield of the coming harvests, bearing in mind that the premium, after all, is an inevitable consequence of the growth on credit of a progressive young country whose natural resources can only be gradually developed.' The premium could have been avoided had the Government used the least prudence or financial knowledge. Unfortunately, it is the nature of a foolish Government to issue too much paper."

The Daily News has been for some time doing its best to prevent a fall in Argentine securities, and for this purpose has published statistical returns of trade and revenue comparing 1884 with 1889, showing an enormous development. This is, of course, quite illusory, for if you compare the values of 1884 with the same reduced to gold in 1889 you find that the Republic has made no progress. If you value sugar at £30 a ton, which may be bought in Europe at £15, you can easily make a table of imaginary trade returns. This is not what serious people mean when they speak of the growth of commerce and revenue.

That the Argentine Republic has a great future in store no man can reasonably doubt. The march of industry may be, nevertheless, seriously retarded by errors of statecraft, and foremost among these is the dogma laid down by the Argentine Government that the rise or fall in the gold premium, the relative appreciation or demerit of the paper money, is a matter of trifling importance. Currency is the blood of the commercial body, and if it be in an unhealthy condition the result must be most injurious. By unhealthy I do not mean depreciated. The country may thrive with dollars worth 12 pence just as well as worth 48 pence, but it cannot thrive with violent fluctuations, involving a change of 20 per cent in three months. Unless you redeem the currency you will have fresh issues of shin-plasters every year, until the paper dollar gets down to its old standard of two pence.

Railway Items.

Another complaint was received yesterday at the N.R. Board from a Tucuman merchant in reference to some irregularity in the service of the Central Northern Railway. Dr. Araoz immediately wired to make inquiry.

We regret to state that an accident occurred the other day to Mr. Hoply, Inspector of the permanent way of the B Aires and Rosario Line. As he was jumping on to a train in motion, he slipped and got his leg broken. A similar mishap occurred to a passenger on the same line at Escobar station.

Mr. Oliver Budge, the popular manager of the East Argentine Railway, leaves to-day to resume the management of the line. We hope that the star of peace will return with Mr. Budge to Entre Rios.

"A subscriber" in reply to O. T. S. writes to us as follows about the proposed Intercontinental Railway:

"Dear STANDARD—Allow me a little space again to repeat my assertion in regard to the best route for the Intercontinental Railway. In the first place the main line must pass through Oran, and not through Paraguay, because it is the more direct route, and this is one of the conditions of the scheme. Between the Paraguay route and the more direct one through Oran there is a difference in extent of 500 kilometres, which would mean an extra 10 hours' journey for passengers, and a further useless cost of 10 to 12 dollars per ton of goods. And I pity the company that should meet with competition in this regard.

"Look at the map and you will see that the route I advocate is the best. Not only is it the most direct but also the cheapest as the preliminary surveys shew. To put Montevideo on the route is very easy, as Mr. Stant's project for a railway to that city would come in splendidly as a branch to the main line. The enormous "detour" advocated by O. T. S. is out of the question. It is simply impracticable. It means 600 kilometres thrown away. Now in regard to O. T. S.'s assertion that passengers would not have to change carriages, he is mistaken. Let him study the systems and gauges that are to make up the road and he will see that I am right. According to information I have obtained from the highest sources, I may state that the colossal project will assume shape before the end of the year and without the intervention of the Paraguay Land Company. Anyone with 10 or 15 years lease of life, including the STANDARD, whose life is eternal, will be able to assist at the opening of the Intercontinental Railway."

We extract as follows from the report of the directors of the City of B Ayres Tramways, read at the meeting held in London on 26th March:—

The Board beg to submit the following statement of the results of the past year's workings:

	1889 £	1888 £
The gross receipts of the Company for the year have been.....	305,376	286,452
Deduct the working expenses	210,210	160,461
	95,166	125,991

From the balance of £95,166 must be deducted the debenture interest, £6960; income tax, £1817; loss on exchange £41,371; making the net profit for the year, £45,018. Out of this sum has been paid:—Interim dividend and bonus to June 30th last, £27'000; placed in permanent way renewal fund, £1000; leaving £18,018. Add balance of net revenue account, 1888, £9577; interest on investments, £3183; making an available balance of £25,778. The working expenses amount to 68.84 per cent, as compared with 56.01 in 888, being an increase of 12.83 per cent. The increase in the gross receipts for the year, as compared with 1888, is £18,924; and the expenses show an increase of £49,749. The loss on exchange has been £41,371, as compared with £31,867 in 1888, being an increase of £9504. The municipal tax of six per cent upon the gross receipts for the year amounts to

The Mercurio is discharging at Balcarce's "barraca:" she has the largest cargo of salt ever brought up from the South.

The Pomona is now nearly loaded, and will sail for Bahia Blanca and Patagones on Saturday or Sunday.

It was very freely rumoured on 'Change this morning that when Congress opens there will be laid before the House a project to sell the National Bank to a joint-stock English company, a move that meets the entire approval of the market.

As an instance of how things are changing round and improving, we may state that an Irish manufacturer has just sent out some capital for investment here. The shipment of stocks and Cedulas per Atrato, close on 1½ million sterling, was the largest of the kind ever known in this market.

There is a decidedly better feeling amongst the holders of Banco Constructor stock, and the many great reforms and economies carried out by the new manager, Mr. Livingston, may be considered the cause of this improvement.

Business in gold at the second hour was not to say large, but the tendency for a fall in prices pervaded the whole hour, leaving the precious metal weak at 234 for to-morrow and all dates. In stocks, Catalinas and Constructors occupied most attention, both finding plenty of buyers at the current rates. National Bank Shares were quiet and firm, closing for to morrow at 152 and for Saturday at 153. Cedulas were not so much looked for as in the morning, but prices kept up.

The following is a summary of operations effected this evening at the second ring:—

The scarcity of paper and abundance of gold still attracts much attention, and it was said to-day that paper is being looked for all over the market against gold. The return of confidence, however, has brought about the unloading of large lots of gold, and the paper is being put into stocks, which accounts for the difficulty in finding paper money available. To whatever it may be due, the fact is becoming more patent every day that gold is abundant and paper scarce.

In exchange, brokers report little alteration; rates are a mere trifle weaker and 48d to 48¼d is still offered and 5.03 francs. The National Bank continues drawing on the Italian mail at 47¾d and 5.02 francs, taking paper for gold at 235 50.

According to Chubut advices, a Welsh colonist has hit upon a splendid vein of gold, specimens of which will be immediately sent up for analysis. The raw material has been found close to the surface and if it turn out to be genuine gold Chubut will prove an Argentine California.

A subscriber, writing to us from Fray Bentos, states that owing to the severe losses in sheep, half the camps on the south side of the Rio Negro are very poorly stocked.

Estancieros of Mercedes are loud in praise of the activity with which the Municipality have taken the repairs of the roads in hand, Mr. Alcosta, the Mayor, setting an example in this respect that might advantageously be followed by all his fellow "intendentes." It has been a kind of maxim in the camp since time out of mind that the roads take care of themselves, a policy which causes serious loss, inconvenience and delay to the public. Mercedes leads the way, and we congratulate Mr. Alcosta on his zeal an i activity.
